"The song I am now including in all my sets because of the positive response I have been receiving." The words of the female clubbers came as a surprise to Warner, who was returning home after a night out in Dublin. "I didn't see her until it was over," he said. "I didn't know it was going on until the guy started telling me about it. "I think he's been doing it all night, until around 3am." He said he would not say if the women's man was wearing underwear, because they were not "entitled to it". "I don't think they are the type of girls who go into clubs in their underwear," Warner said. "I think it's just someone who didn't know how to have a bit of fun." Millionaire Rugby Man In a separate incident earlier today, Mr Wheatley appeared in court accused of assaulting a man outside a pub in Mallow, Co Cork. He was bailed on condition he did not contact the man. The Gardaí said in a statement that the male was not seriously injured and refused to comment further. Before his arrest, Mr Wheatley was spotted on a golf course in Piltown, Co Kilkenny, driving a dark green F-150 truck which was full of golf clubs. It is unclear whether Mr Wheatley has a private driver, as he is no longer driving a lorry for the meat company and has yet to return messages seeking comment. The Cork-based businessman and father of six is best known for hosting an annual golf tournament, with a population of just 1,200 in 2001, and hosting the only 100-guest pub quiz in the world. The six-times Irish host, who recently bought a farm in Kilkenny, has previously said he would not be returning to the quiz circuit. But on Sunday, he admitted to the Sunday Tribune that he had cancelled a number of events in recent months. "I've been doing it for 10 years and I thought I'd be pushing 70 and I'd still be doing it," he said. "But I think it's going to run out." Mr Wheatley made the money from a daily newspaper, The Bandon Standard, which he set up in 1981. He has also made millions from the trivia quiz circuit. In April, the Travelling Man added 82157476af
